this collection of the essential primary and secondary law of the european union quickly and effectively guides students to the material they need during exams and lectures part i contains the european union s primary law in consolidated form part ii offers a selection of the essential pieces of european union legislation in five core areas of particular importance to undergraduate and graduate studies institutions the internal market competition social policy and consumer protection colour coded for easy navigation all legislative acts are presented in their lisbonised and consolidated form student support is provided in two forewords that guide readers through the steps of finding reading and understanding eu law and a sophisticated table of equivalences that illustrates the evolution of the treaties from the rome treaty to the present day an appendix includes extracts of the two central uk acts that pertain to the european union a third edition textbook providing a comprehensive account of the law of treaties from the viewpoint of an experienced practitioner this book which is dedicated to the memory of the distinguished international lawyer monroe leigh presents a consolidated treatise on how different states organize their treaty making through national law and practice traditionally scholars have studied treaties from either an international or national perspective examining treaties in terms of the international law rules embodied in the vienna convention on the law of treaties or focusing on the treaty law of a single state this compendium culminates a nearly thirty year effort to derive a third comparative perspective on the law of treaties it analyzes the law and practice of nineteen states austria canada chile china colombia egypt france germany india israel japan mexico the netherlands russia south africa switzerland thailand the united kingdom and the united states each chapter follows a common outline and contains an essay written by national expert s on a state s treaty law and practice along with excerpts of relevant treaty related legislation and documentation the states surveyed represent a cross section of the international community and as such provide evidence of state practice generally the first chapter illustrates how this evidence can inform international law examining what criteria the surveyed states use to define treaties whom they authorize to negotiate and conclude treaties the legislative role in treaty making and the effect of treaties within national legal systems taken together these materials will serve as a lasting reference work on treaty law and practice for scholars practitioners and government officials international law reports is the only publication in the world wholly devoted to the regular and systematic reporting in english of courts and arbitrators as well as judgements of national courts this book is exceptional in the sense that it provides an introduction to law in general rather than the law of one specific jurisdiction and it presents a unique way of looking at legal education it is crucial for lawyers to be aware of the different ways in which societal problems can be solved and to be able to discuss the advantages and disadvantages of different legal solutions in this respect being a lawyer involves being able to reason like a lawyer even more than having detailed knowledge of particular sets of rules introduction to law reflects this view by focusing on the functions of rules and on ways of arguing the relative qualities of alternative legal solutions where positive law is discussed the emphasis is on the legal questions that must be addressed by a field of law and on the different solutions which have been adopted by for instance the common law and civil law tradition the law of specific jurisdictions is discussed to illustrate possible answers to questions such as when the existence of a valid contract is assumed in provisionally applied treaties their binding force and legal nature anneliese quast mertsch examines the binding force and legal nature of treaties during the period of their provisional application a subject whose significance in practice is not reflected in the relatively limited attention it receives in academic writing she analyses academic opinion and international practice including especially the manifestations of the intentions of the parties on the subject whilst commonly considered as being in a class of their own the book instead suggests that provisionally applied treaties are agreements whose binding force and legal nature can vary and should be determined on a case by case basis as is done with other agreements in international law first published in 1995 the law of treaties a central field of international law was also a central concern for paul reuter as a jurist in close association with jean monnet he made a decisive contribution to the schuman plan which led to the treaty instituting the european coal and steel community in 1951 but it was mainly from 1964 onwards when he became a member of the international law commission that he took an ever growing part in the development of the law of treaties this book provides a systematic approach to legislation and legal practice concerning energy resources and production in international energy law the book describes the broad international energy set up administrative organization regulatory framework and relevant case law pertaining to the development application and use of such forms of energy as electricity gas petroleum and coal with attention as needed to the pervasive legal effects of competition law environmental law and tax law a general introduction covers the geography of energy resources sources and basic principles of energy law and the relevant governmental institutions then follows a detailed description of specific legislation and regulation affecting such factors as documentation undertakings facilities storage pricing procurement and sales transportation transmission distribution and supply of each form of energy case law intergovernmental cooperation agreements and interactions with environmental tax and competition law are explained its succinct yet scholarly nature as well as the practical quality of the information it provides make this book a valuable resource for energy sector policymakers negotiators investors and energy firm counsel handling cases affecting international energy law it will also be welcomed by researchers and academics for its contribution to the study of the complex field of energy law that has peculiar characteristics because of associated risks and rewards

1 purpose and topic we live in the age of treaties increasingly bilateral and multilateral written agreements are used for the creation of new international legal standards for political reasons states are decreasingly less willing to rely upon customary international law for the regulation of legal matters new technology and growing international exchange have established the need for an ever more precise and flexible international law a need not satisfactorily met by customary law in many fields of activity we can seriously question whether the creation of a rule of custom is at all possible considering also that the number of states capable of drafting and concluding treaties seems to be growing it is not surprising that treaties are concluded far more frequently than ever before in several ways this is a development that should be met with approval by entering into written agreements states avoid the difficulties inherent in customary international law at the same time the increasing number of treaties should also be causing concern the more treaties that are concluded the more treaties that will have to be applied and the more treaties that are applied the more often the question will arise to what extent and under what specific conditions should such an application occur naturally this includes the question of how treaties should be interpreted examines the key features of the vienna convention reservations and modifications application interpretation suspension and settlement of dispute as well as discussing its scope and significance this book provides a comprehensive examination of the interaction between services of general economic interest sgei and eu competition law covering in particular article 106 of the treaty on the functioning of the european union tfeu and state aid rules it also takes the telecommunications postal service and transport sectors as case studies taking into account the technological economic and political backgrounds to these sectors the area of sgei has undergone fundamental developments over the past three decades and the most recent changes in the lisbon treaty recognizing sgei as a shared value and granting explicit competence to the eu mark its constitutional significance the key issue is how to balance economic values underlying competitive markets and non economic public service values such as universal access to essential services the essence of the question is the relationship between the market and the state this controversial issue is addressed through a critical analysis of a number of landmark eu court judgments and commission decisions over the decades offering a clear appreciation of the evolution of the eu regulatory framework on sgei that lays out the limits and boundaries within which the member states define organize and fund sgei the book is particularly aimed at academics with a research interest in the interaction between public services and eu competition law but as it also demonstrates clearly how the application of eu competition law has transformed the public utilities sectors it will be of interest to law makers legal professionals and policy makers as well dr lei zhu is a research associate at the institute of international law at wuhan university in wuhan china he studied at the institute for competition procurement studies of the bangor university law school in wales united kingdom where he obtained his phd in law in 2015
