aftertaste expanded practices in interior design is an edited volume comprising texts interviews and portfolios that collectively document new theories and emerging critical practices in the field of interior design the material is informed by but not limited to the annual aftertaste symposia hosted by parsons the new school of design the book s central argument is that the field of interior design is inadequately served by its historical reliance on taste making and taste makers and more recently from a set of theoretical concerns derived from architecture the volume seeks to set an expanded frame by advancing new voices and perspectives in both the theory and practice of interior design considered as an independent discipline in 2007 the department of architecture interior design and lighting at parsons the new school for design inaugurated an annual international symposium series dedicated to the critical study of the interior titled aftertaste these yearly symposia offer expansive views of interior studies highlight emerging areas of research identify allied practices make public its under explored territory and attract future designers and scholars to the field now in its fourth year aftertaste has proven to be one of the very few venues internationally for critically exploring interior design the field of interior design is asymmetrically served by the current literature in the field too frequently the current writing and making in interiors emphasize the ineffable the biographical and the social elite and promote a curiously unsubstantiated notion of connoisseurship as the principal basis for design other attempts to construct an intellectual agenda for the study of the interior draw heavily from architectural theory ignoring the discipline's own specific and autonomous history aftertaste the book is intended to adjust this imbalance by introducing interior design material that is theoretically and historically situated technically grounded demographically inclusive and aesthetically adventurous in 1939 vogue magazine invited commercial designer raymond loewy and eight of his contemporaries including walter dorwin teague egmont arens and henry dreyfuss to design a dress for the woman of the future as part of its special issue promoting the new york world's fair and its theme the world of tomorrow while focusing primarily on her clothing and accessories many commented as well on the future woman's physique predicting that her body and mind would be perfected through the implementation of eugenics industrial designers' fascination with eugenics especially that of norman bel geddes began during the previous decade and its principles permeated their theories of the modern design style known as streamlining in eugenic design christina cogdell charts new territory in the history of industrial design popular science and american culture in the 1930s by uncovering the links between streamline design and eugenics the pseudoscientific belief that the best human traits could and should be cultivated through selective breeding streamline designers approached products the same way eugenicists approached bodies both considered themselves to be reformers advancing evolutionary progress through increased efficiency hygiene and the creation of a utopian ideal type cogdell reconsiders the popular streamline style in u.s. industrial design and proposes that in theory rhetoric and context the style served as a material embodiment of eugenic ideology with careful analysis and abundant illustrations eugenic design is an ambitious reinterpretation of one of america's most significant and popular design forms ultimately grappling with the question of how ideology influences design questioning the traditional boundaries between cities suburbs countryside and wilderness this issue of ad explores emergent types of public space in low density environments it describes this new form of urbanism decentralised in a constant process of expansion and contraction not homogenous or necessarily low rise nor guided by one mode of development typology or pattern while functionally and programmatically dispersed settlements operate as a form of urbanism the place of collective spaces within them has yet to be defined and articulated the physical transformation of the built environment on the one hand and the change in our notion of the public on the other due to globalisation privatisation and segregation call for renewed interpretations of the nature and character of public space the concept of public space needs to be examined replaced re created or adapted to fit these conditions what is the place of the public in this form of urbanism and how can architecture address the notion of common collective spaces what is the current sociopolitical role of such spaces how does the form and use of these spaces reflect the conception of the public as a political or non political body and can architecture regain an active role in formulating the notion of the collective these and other issues are addressed through essays research projects and built work by distinguished writers such as bruce robbins albert pope and alex wall and practitioners including zvi hecker vito acconci mutopia manuel de sola morales martha rosler and manuel vicente in a search for new collective architectures within the dispersed city digital fabrication in interior design body object enclosure draws together emerging topics of making that span primary forms of craftsmanship to digital fabrication in order to theoretically and practically analyze the innovative and interdisciplinary relationship between digital fabrication technology and interior design the history of making in interior design is aligned with traditional crafts but a parallel discourse with digital fabrication has yet to be made evident this book repositions the praxis of experimental prototyping and integrated technology to show how the use of digital fabrication is inherent to the interior scales of body objects and enclosure these three scales act as a central theme to frame contributions that reinforce the interdisciplinary nature of interior design and reinterpret traditional crafts by integrating new methods of making into conventional workflows featuring significant international practitioners and researchers the selected contributions represent the ever increasing interdisciplinary nature of design demonstrating a breadth of disciplines a foundational text for interiors students and practitioners digital fabrication in interior design expands the necessary dialogue about digital fabrication at the scale of interiors to inform design theory and practice
